Herbal Applications and Acupuncture For The Treatment of External Diseases

*The Works of Dr. Di
An Early 19th Century Chinese Medicine Physician*

[Note: Sections I and II (Cases 1-39) are in Dr. Di Case Studies, Part 1]

Section III: Wind-Damp-Heat-Toxins Attack

Case Studies 40-44

40. Excess wind-damp attack first treated with acupuncture.

A fifty year-old male came down with stomach flu symptoms due to an external wind-damp attack. He had excess diarrhea and vomiting, abdominal pain, spasm of the extremities, and he could not eat or drink for three days. He had a red tongue with a white greasy coating, and his pulse was floating in the Lung and slippery and wiry in the Spleen.

Diagnosis: Wind-damp attacks Stomach and Spleen.

Treatment plan: To use acupuncture to stop nausea and vomiting and use herbs to treat the wind damp.

Formula: Acupuncture and Huo Xiang Zheng Qi San modification.

Acupuncture treatment:

UB 57, UB 60 and TB 6 to stop spasm; St 36 and CV 14 to stop nausea. After the acupuncture treatment he had no more nausea and extremities spasm.

Herbal treatment:

Huo Xiang (Herba Agastaches seu Pogostemi) 12g.

Pei Lan (Herba Eupatorii Fortunei) 12g.

Cang Zhu (Rhizoma Actractylodis) 12g.

All the herbs above aromatically transform dampness. Huo Xiang and Cang Zhu expel wind-damp and treat stomach flu. Huo Xiang tends to move more quickly and it affects the surface.

Cang Zhu penetrates the interior and expels wind-damp-bi pain. Pei Lan has light aromatic scents to break through the turbid dampness.

Da Fu Pi (Pericarpium Arecae Catechu) 9g.

Chen Pi (Pericarpium Citri Reticulatae) 10g.

Da Fu Pi and Chen Pi regulate Qi. Da Fu Pi promotes urination and is stronger to break up Qi stagnation. Chen Pi dries dampness in the Middle Jiao.

Sha Ren (Fructus Amomie) 6g.

Ban Xia (Rhizoma Pinelliae Ternatae) 9g.

Sha Ren and Ban Xia dry dampness in the Middle Jiao and descend Stomach Qi. Sha Ren is an aromatic transform dampness herb and it tends to rise to the upper body and to affect the surface. Ban Xia is stronger and heavier, going deeper in the body to dry dampness.

Bai Bian Dou (Semen Dolichoris Lablab) 12g.

Bai Bian Dou leaches out dampness to strengthen the Spleen Qi.

Pao Jiang (toasted Zingiberis Officinalls Recens Rhizoma) 12g.

Bai Zhu (Rhizoma Atractylodis Macrocephalae) 12g.

Pao Jiang and Bai Zhu are warming to dry the Spleen. Pao Jiao is warmer to more strongly dry the dampness and it also has a stronger moving function. Bai Zhu is stable and maintains a presence in the Blood longer.

Xu Duan (Radix Dipsaci Asperi) 10g.

Xu Duan warms the Kidney Yang and promotes Blood circulation.

Gan Cao (Radix Glycyrrhizae Uralensis) 3g.

Gan Cao harmonizes the ingredients of the formula.

Resolution:

He took this formula a little each time to prevent the herbal tea from irritating his stomach, and he drank as much he could during the course of a day. Then he took three bags for three days and had a full recovery.

41. Acupuncture: Wind-damp-heat-toxins causing loss of consciousness

A seventy year-old female had diarrhea and vomiting for one month. Then, she became unconscious with a low-grade fever that worsened at night. During that time, she had not eaten nor had a bowel movement. Her tongue was dark red with a black dry coating, and her pulses were floating and weak in the Lung while deep, small and wiry in the Kidney.

Diagnosis: Wind-damp-heat-toxin attacks Stomach, Spleen and Heart.

Treatment plan: To use acupuncture to awaken her mind and herbal medicine clear damp-heat-toxin.

Formula: Acupuncture treatment and Ge Gen Huang Lian Jie Du Tang and Tao Hong Si Wu Tang modification.

Acupuncture treatment:

St 36, and P6 and Du 14 were utilized to revive consciousness. She awakened and her mind was about forty percent improved after stimulating the needles. Gua Sha was done on her back about 12 times. There were many pox present on her skin and after breaking the pox open, dark blood leaked out.

Herbal treatment:

Ge Gen (Radix Puerariae) 12g.

Ge Gen raises the Spleen Qi up to stop diarrhea and it relaxes the muscles.

Huang Lian (Rhizoma Coptidis) 12g.

Jin Yin Hua (Flos Lonicerae Japonicae) 15g.

Huang Lian and Jin Yin Hua clear damp-heat-toxins from the Middle Jiao to stop diarrhea. Huang Lian is stronger and it clears Heart fire while Jin Yin Hua acts on the surface.

Sha Ren (Fructus Amomie) 12g.

Ban Xia (Rhizoma Pinelliae Ternatae) 9g.

Sha Ren and Ban Xia dry dampness in the Middle Jiao and descend Stomach Qi. Sha Ren tends to have faster action to break through the phlegm. Ban Xia is stronger and more stable, staying active in the body longer to dry the phlegm.

Tao Ren (Semen Persicae) 12g.

Hong Hua (Flos Carthami Tinctorii) 10g.

Tao Ren and Hong Hua promote Blood circulation and break up congealed Blood. Tao Ren is stable and stays in the Blood longer. It also moistens dryness. Hong Hua more quickly breaks through stagnant Blood.

Huang Qi (Radix Astragali Membranaceus) 12g.

Dang Shen (Radix Codonopsis Pilosulae) 12g.

Huang Qi and Dang Shen strengthen the Qi. Huang Qi raises the Qi and Dang Shen is more powerful at supplementing the Spleen qi.

Sheng Di Huang (Radix Rehmanniae Glutinosae) 10g.

Mu Dan Pi (Cortex Moutan Radicis) 9g

Sheng Di Huang and Mu Dan Pi cool heat in the blood. Sheng Di Huang nourishes the Blood, Jing and Yin. Mu Dan Pi promotes Blood circulation.

Gan Cao (Radix Glycyrrhizae Uralensis) 3g.

Gan Cao harmonizes the ingredients' actions in the formula.

Resolution:

She took one bag and her consciousness was revived. The fever abated as did the diarrhea and she continued taking the same formula for three days after which time all her symptoms resolved. She was then prescribed a Shi Quan Da Bu Tang modification for her Qi and Blood.

42. Lu5 Acupuncture for Acute Stomach Flu Prior to Herbs.

A fifteen year-old girl caught a flu and had excess diarrhea, vomiting, and pain in the abdomen. She had not been able to drink or eat for days. She had a pale tongue with a moist white coating, and her pulse was floating in the Lung position while deep and slow in both the Spleen and Kidneys.

Diagnosis: Wind-damp attack of Stomach and Spleen.

Treatment plan: To stop vomiting and clear wind-damp.

Formula: Bleeding and acupuncture treatment and Huo Xiao Zheng Qi San modification.

Acupuncture treatment:

Bleeding technique on Lu 5, with acupuncture on St 36 and CV 14. She stopped vomiting for a while.

Herbal treatment:

Huo Xiang (Herba Agastaches seu Pogostemi) 12g.

Cang Zhu (Rhizoma Atractylodis) 9g.

Su Ye (Folium Perillae Frutescentis) 12g.

All the herbs above expel wind-damp to treat stomach flu. Huo Xiang is the strongest in its ability to release wind-damp. Cang Zhu tends to penetrate through the dampness and expel wind-damp-bi pain. Su Ye is physically lightweight to float up to the surface and to descend the Stomach Qi.

Pao Jiang (toasted Zingiberis Officinalls Recens Rhizoma) 12g.

Rou Gui (Cortex Cinnamomi Cassiae) 3g.

Pao Jiang and Rou Gui warm the Middle Jiao and Kidney Yang. Pao Jiang maintains a presence in the Blood longer. Rou Gui flows to the surface and through the channels and guides the fire back to the source.

Bai Zhi (Radix Angelicae Dahuricae) 9g.

Bai Zhi expels wind and damp to dry Upper and Middle Jiao dampness.

Chen Pi (Pericarpium Citri Reticulatae) 3g.

Ban Xia (Rhizoma Pinelliae Ternatae) 9g.

Chen Pi and Ban Xia are paired herbs to dry dampness and regulate Qi. Chen Pi regulates Qi and tends to treat the surface. Ban Xia stays in the Blood longer and is denser in composition making it powerful in its ability to dry damp and descend Stomach Qi.

Xiang Fu (Rhizome Cyperi Rotunda) 6g.

Xiang Fu promotes Blood circulation, regulates Qi and stops pain.

Hou Po (Cortex Magnoliae Officinalis) 9g.

Hou Po regulates Qi and dries phlegm.

Da Fu Pi (Pericarpium Arecae Catechu) 12g.

Fu Ling (Sclerotium Poriae Cocco) 15g.

Da Fu Pi and Fu Ling promote urination. Da Fu Pi regulates and breaks up Qi stagnation. Fu Ling harmonizes the water balance.

Gan Cao (Radix Glycyrrhizae Uralensis) 3g.

Gan Cao harmonizes the ingredients in the formula.

Resolution:

She took the herbal tea a little bit each time to prevent it from causing nausea and she managed to finish two cups during a day. Afterwards, she took one bag per day. The diarrhea, vomiting and pain disappeared. She continued the same the formula one more day to ensure the pathogen was expelled completely.

43. Chest phlegm stagnation and near loss of consciousness

A twenty-three year-old female felt nauseous and felt the need to defecate, but was unable to have a bowel movement or vomit. She had spasms with pain in the intestines, cold hands and feet, cold sweat, pale face, irritability, and was close to fainting. Her tongue was purple with a greasy thick white coating and her pulses were deep and wiry.

Diagnosis: Turbid phlegm stagnation in the Middle Jiao.

Treatment plan: To eliminate excess phlegm stagnation.

Formula: Acupuncture treatment, Yan Tang Tan Tu Fang and Huo Xiang Zheng Qi San modification.

Acupuncture treatment:

Bleeding technique on Lu 5 and UB 40.

After the acupuncture treatment she had less abdominal pain.

Herbal treatment:

Yan (Salt) 120g

Yan causes vomiting and has to be used in large dosages.

Resolution:

After she drank the full cup of salt, she had intense vomiting and diarrhea but no more irritability or fainting feeling. She was given Huo Xiang Zheng Qi San to aromatically transform the Middle Jiao dampness.

Herbal Treatment:

Huo Xiang (Herba Agastaches seu Pogostemi) 15g.

Cang Zhu (Rhizoma Actractylodis) 12g.

Huo Xiang and Cang Zhu expel wind-damp. Huo Xiang is stronger at releasing the surface and Cang Zhu penetrates deeper to treat damp stagnation.

Hou Po (Cortex Magnoliae Officinalis) 10g.

Hou Po dissolves phlegm and breaks up Qi stagnation.

Chen Pi (Pericarpium Citri Reticulatae) 6g.

Sha Ren (Fructus Amomie) 10g.

Ban Xiao (Rhizoma Pinelliae Ternatae) 10g.

Chen Pi, Sha Ren and Ban Xia dry phlegm and descend Stomach Qi. Chen Pi is mild and regulates Qi. Sha Ren is aromatic and it transforms dampness. Ban Xia is heavy and its density guides it deeper into the body to dry phlegm.

Fu Ling (Sclerotium Poriae Cocco) 15g.

Fu Ling promotes urination to drain dampness from the Middle Jiao.

Gan Cao (Radix Glycyrrhizae Uralensis) 3g.

Gan Cao harmonizes the ingredients in the formula.

Resolution:

She took one bag for two days and recovered.

44. Acute opisthotonos.

A fifty-three year-old male had a stomach flu attack with excess diarrhea and a cold sweat. His face was dark yellow and his tongue and lips were dark green. His entire body was stricken with opisthotonos and he had convulsions. His eyes stared open and skyward. He had floating and wiry pulses.

Diagnosis: Excess diarrhea depleted UB Tai Yang channel causing spasm along the channel from the toe to the eye.

Treatment plan: To nourish the Yin and stop internal wind.

Formula: Da Ding Fang Zhu and Shi Quan Da Bu Wan modification.

E Jiao (Gelatinum Corii Asini) 12g.

Bai Shao (Radix Peoniae Lactiflorae) 15g.

Shu Di Huang (Radix Rehmanniae Glutinosae Conquिताe) 30g.

Wu Wei Zi (Fructus Schizandrae Chinensis) 6g.

Ji Zi Huang (egg yolk) 2 pieces

All ingredients nourish the Yin. E Jiao nourishes the Blood and stops bleeding. Bai Shao stops internal wind and astringes the Liver Yang. Shu Di Huang nourishes the Blood, Jing and Yin. Wu Wei Zi astringes and nourishes the Yin while calming the mind. Ji Zi Huang nourishes the Spleen Qi and Jing.

Tian Ma (Rhizoma Gastrodiae Elatae) 12g.

Gou Teng (Ramulus Uncariae Cum Uncis) 12g.

Tian Ma and Gou Teng are paired herbs to stop internal wind. Tian Ma is stronger and stable. Gou Teng tends to move faster to trace after the wind.

Dang Shen (Radix Codonopsis Pilosulae) 12g.

Bai Zhu (Rhizoma Atractylodis Macrocephalae) 15g.

Dang Shen and Bai Zhu tonify the Spleen. Dang Shen strengthens the Spleen Qi. Bai Zhu is warm and dries the Middle Jiao to strengthen the Spleen Qi.

Dang Gui (Radix Angelicae Sinensis) 12g.

Chuan Xiong (Radix Ligustici Chuanxiong) 6g.

Dang Gui and Chuan Xiong promote Blood circulation. Dang Gui nourishes the Blood and works on a deeper level. Chuan Xiong moves the Qi in the Blood.

Gan Cao (Radix Glycyrrhizae Uralensis) 3g.

Gan Cao harmonizes the ingredients.

Resolution:

He took one bag for a day. He had had no more opisthotonos and his body was relaxed. His eyes were no longer in spasm. He continued with the same herbal formula, using three bags for three days. He had a yellow face, but without any darkness. His lips were no longer green. His tongue was red on the sides, purple and teeth marked. His pulses were wiry, weak and deep.

Diagnosis: Qi and Yin deficiency with Qi and Blood stagnation and internal wind.

Treatment plan: To strengthen the Qi and Yin, move the qi and Blood, and stop any residual internal wind.

Formula: Shi Quan Da Bu Tang and Tian Ma Gou Teng Tang modification.

Dang Shen (Radix Codonopsis Pilosulae) 12g.

Bai Zhu (Rhizoma Atractylodis Macrocephalae) 12g.

Fu Ling (Sclerotium Poriae Cocco) 15g.

Gan Cao (Radix Glycyrrhizae Uralensis) 3g.

This is a modification of Si Jun Zi Tang. Dang Shen strengthens the Spleen Qi. Bai Zhu dries the dampness in the Middle Jiao. Fu Ling promotes urination to drain dampness and Gan Cao harmonizes their functions.

Chuan Xiong (Radix Ligustici Chuanxiong) 3g.

Dan Shen (Radix Salviae Miltiorrhizae) 12g.

Dang Gui (Radix Angelicae Sinensis) 6g.

Chuan Xiong, Dan Shen and Dang Gui promote Blood circulation. Chuan Xiong moves the Qi in the Blood. Dan Shen cools the heat and especially promotes small blood vessel circulation. Dang Gui nourishes the Blood and moves the Blood of Blood.

Mu Dan Pi (Cortex Moutan Radicis) 12g.

Sheng Di Huang (Radix Rehmanniae Glutinosae) 15g.

Mu Dan Pi and Sheng Di Huang cool the heat in the Blood. Mu Dan Pi promotes Blood circulation. Sheng Di Huang nourishes the Blood, Jing and Yin.

Tian Ma (Rhizoma Gastrodiae Elatae) 12g.

Gou Teng (Ramulus Uncariae Cum Uncis) 15g.

Tian Ma and Gou Teng cool heat and stop internal wind. Tian Ma is stronger than Gou Teng. Gou Teng tends to surface.

Ji Xue Teng (Radix Et Caulis Jixueteng) 15g.

Ji Xue Teng expels wind-damp-bi pain and nourishes the Blood.

Resolution:

He took fourteen bags for fourteen days and recovered.

45. Bleeding technique for acute excess summer heat stroke.

A sixty-seven year-old overweight male patient was walking in hot weather during the summer and suddenly fainted. His face was green and his lips were a dark color. His legs were cold from the feet up to his knees. He had a purple tongue and his pulses were deep and very small.

Diagnosis: Exhausted Heart Qi and Yang attacked by summer-heat stroke.

Treatment plan: To wake up the Heart of Shen and strengthen the Qi and Yang.

Formula: Acupuncture and Tong Qiao Huo Xue Tang modification.

Acupuncture treatment:

Du 14 was stimulated until he awakened. Then, bleeding was done on Lu 5, UB 40, Shi Xuan (M-UE-1, extra point at the tips of the fingers) while needles were inserted at P6, CV6, and CV 14. Bing Pian (Borneolum) and She Xiang (Secretio Moschus) were blown into his nose. He was completely awake after a short while.

Herbal treatment:

Dang Shen (Radix Codonopsis Pilosulae) 12g.

Huang Qi (Radix Astragali Membranaceus) 15g.
